Sandhani DMC Unit sympathizes that for any reason you need blood for transfusion.

It is always better to get blood from relatives. As:

§ They are trusted to have no disease.

§ They are your relations. So the properties of the blood may be similar and the patient will have no side effects.

If there is no one among the relatives with required blood group to donate, feel free to check online here.

To acquire information about probable donors online, follow the instructions below:

1. Select the blood group you require along with Rh factor
2. Click on 'Submit' button
3. A list of probable donors (if available), will be shown
4. Select your donor/donors

5. For additional information about the respected donors you are to visit Sandhani Dhaka Medical College Unit with the following documents:

- Medical report of the patient
- A blood requisition form issued by the doctors at the hospital/ clinic.
- 'Donor ID' and names of the donors that you collected online from our site.

Welcome to Law Commission – Bangladesh Website

Law of the land in a dynamic society requires to be constantly reviewed by an authority to be manned by persons having adequate and thorough knowledge of law and the society. Thus the need to establish a law reform agency was felt by different countries at different times and Law Commissions have been set up to fulfill the need. The Law Commission in Bangladesh came about in that historic process. Launching of this web site on the part of the Law Commission is an attempt to inform the people about the Commission and the jobs carried out by it so far. It is an unending process and it will be updated with the addition of works as will accumulate with the passage of time.

Welcome to the homepage of TRACE - Trade Cooperation and Economic Policy Reform in South Asia. This research project is funded by the European Community and carried out by BIDS, the Bangladesh Institute of Development Studies in Dhaka, one of Bangladesh's oldest and most prominent economic research institutes. Researchers from several other regional institutes will also collaborate in the project.

The core activity of the project is an extensive research program on regional trade and economic policy reform and the overall goal is to raise public awareness about regional trade cooperation in Bangladesh and other South Asian countries.

On this website major events in the project will be published, including data on regional trade that will be collected during the research. The research results will be published here as they become available.

Introduction and Objective of this Website

National development through educational development with this philosophy we have developed this database website, which is fully flavored with educational information. Bangladesh, a country with nearly 140 million people is moving forward in the path of economic growth with the aim of reducing poverty and achieving sustainable development. However, lack of educational development is a big obstacle for achieving this national goal. Although government allocates the highest budget for education sector, education has not yet enlightened every corner of Bangladesh.

This website will let you know about the education system, educational administration, information about educational institutes, educational problems and prospects in Bangladesh. Moreover we have added some information on worldwide education, links of different universities and education related organizations.

This is the first ever website containing searchable information on Bangladesh education. Our main goal is to make a bridge between the visitors and the education by developing this website. Containing information about all educational institutes of Bangladesh, this database will help the visitors to find information according to their requirement. Moreover students will be able to choose the college or university for their higher education both home and abroad. The foreign educational institutes as well as the education related

Welcome to Ansted University

Today, Ansted University is a private global educational institution providing distance education through a World Class Academic Faculty to adult students in more than 96 countries around the world. Research has demonstrated how adults acquire knowledge and skills, and has emphasized the need for less formal and non-institutionalized learning. Ansted University has developed accelerated degree programmes to provide academic credit for an adult student's professional work experience and specialized training, based on the guideline of the Council of Adult Experiential Learning equivalency of degree requirements.

Ansted University's select constituency is comprised of mature adults learners who, through work experience, have gained considerable competency in their professions but who desire to broaden their knowledge and to gain further recognition and advancement. A few years ago Ansted University modified the teaching of British Higher Education through distance learning programmes by recognising the realities and educational limitations existing in other countries (limited research facilities, cultural and religious factors, violence, wars etc). The final result was an array of Ansted University degree programmes designed to satisfy the educational needs of adult students all over the world. The educational philosophy of Ansted University is the attainment of high ethical standards while seeking wisdom and the pursuit of excellence.

Ekushey February

Ekushey February has come back like in every year to take us back in the memory lane to the remembrance of the events in that spring in 1952, when the language martyrs gave their lives to defend the honour of their mother tongue or the Bengali language.

On this day in 1952, Salam, Barkat, Rafiq, Shafiq and Jabbar laid down their lives on the streets of Dhaka for the cause of mother tongue Bangla. Their sacrifices paved the way for snatching liberty from erstwhile Pakistan in 1971.

Amar Ekushey February attained greater glory being recognised as International Mother Language Day with the UNESCO declaration on November 17, 1999. People across the globe also commemorated the day as Ekushey became a byword for universal struggle for right to language and cultural heritage of all nationalities in the world.

Over 250 million people of the world speak in Bengali and some 188 countries around the world observed 21st February as the International Mother Language Day.

On this day in 1952 the simple sons of the soil but heroic and majestic in their spirit raised their voice to resist a malintention that sought to degrade our language and culture through imposition of the alien language replacing our own language and culture. They reacted spontaneously to the awful insult and came out in protest in the roads of Dhaka city and embraced martyrdom as bullets were fired on them by the police at the instruction of the then rulers. But the sacrifices of the slain were not for nothing. They became the beloved language martyrs and underlined with their blood the indispensability of preserving our national identity, our language, our culture and hence the supreme necessity to achieve our total freedom and sovereignty over our own affairs. Thus, Ekushey February became the fountain-head of our inspiration to struggle onwards towards complete independence and nationhood.

The language martyrs were among the finest sons of this country as they were pulsated by the highest and noblest feelings of patriotism and high idealism. They were the true sons of the soil and nothing but love for the land of their birth and up bring, its way of life and living inspired their utterly selfless actions.

World Habitat Day

World Habitat Day (WHD), 7 October, 2002

City-to-City Cooperation

"City-to-City Cooperation" is the theme for this year's World Habitat Day (WHD), which is to be celebrated on 7 October, 2002. This year the global observances will be held in Brussels, Belgium, and will be jointly hosted by the Ministry of Foreign Affairs of the Government of Belgium and the European Commission. Cities and local authorities have been fostering international cooperation since the foundation of the first international association of local authorities in 1913. Early exchange among cities in developed countries were followed by links with cities in developing countries. In an increasingly urbanizing world, this year's WHD theme is meant to encourage more city to city cooperation or C2C as it is commonly known.

With over half of the world's population now living in cities and towns, the United Nations has prioritised sustainable urbanization. Earlier last year, at Istanbul + 5, the Special Session of the General Assembly, Governments issued a Declaration on Cities and other Human Settlements in the New Millennium which endorsed the specific Millennium Declaration target of making a significant improvement in the lives of 100 million slum dwellers by 2020. The theme of this year's World Habitat Day is dedicated to helping the world meet these targets.

The United Nations Human Settlements Programme, UN-HABITAT, is mandated by the UN General Assembly to assist countries and communities to solve some of the root causes of these problems through concerted action and policy improvements in the human settlements sector. Every year, since 1985, when it was designated by the General Assembly, World Habitat Day has been celebrated on the first Monday of October. This day has been set aside by the United Nations for the world to reflect on the state of human settlements and the basic right to adequate shelter. This year Governments and local authorities are called upon to hold observances to encourage greater awareness about the need to improve our living environment through more City to City cooperation.

Bangladesh

World Habitat Day Ceremony will be inaugurated by Prime Minister Khaleda Zia as a chief guest.

Venue: Osmani Memorial Hall.

Date: 7-10-2002, Time: 11.30am.

International Day for the Preservation of the Ozone Layer

Considering the urgent need to preserve the ozone layer, which filters sunlight and prevents the adverse effects of ultraviolet radiation reaching the Earth's surface, thereby preserving life on the planet,

Highlighting the importance of the implementation of the Montreal Protocol on Substances that Deplete the Ozone Layer, concluded at Montreal on 16 September 1987, and its subsequent amendments, and the relevant role played by the Executive Committee of its Multilateral Fund,

Recognizing the strong commitment shown by signatory States and States Parties to the Montreal Protocol, as well as by various concerned non-governmental organizations,

- Proclaims 16 September the International Day for the Preservation of the Ozone Layer, commemorating the date in 1987 on which the Montreal Protocol on Substances that Deplete the Ozone Layer was signed, to be observed beginning in 1995;
- Requests the Secretary-General to take all necessary steps to ensure the successful observance of the International Day for the Preservation of the Ozone Layer;
- Invites all Member States to devote this special day to promotion, at the national level, of concrete activities in accordance with the objectives and goals of the Montreal Protocol and its amendments;

World Literacy Day
8th Sep. 2002

SECRETARY-
HEALTH DAY

On the 8 September 2002, the world will celebrate International Literacy Day for the 38th time.

This year's celebration will focus on "Literacy as Freedom", linking it to development. It will also underscore the importance of literacy and basic education as a major tool in building a cohesive and peaceful society for the 21st Century.

Universal Children's Day

The State of the World's Children 2002

As the 21st century begins, children and women are the overwhelming majority of the people in the world who live in poverty, who are killed and maimed in conflicts and who are most vulnerable to infection with HIV/AIDS. Their rights, as set forth in the Convention on the Rights of the Child and the Convention on the Elimination of All Forms of Discrimination against Women, are violated every day in countless ways.
